ATTACKS IAUKEA.

The current Issue of Home Rule, the Wileox organ, thus opens up on Col. Inukon:

"The little snake of Walalua talks with a wish-hone in his mouth. He says he takes issue and resents the statement that the electorate (meaning thereby the Hawaiian voter) is 'irresponsible'; he says, I know you will point to the utter incompetence and failure of our Delegate to properly maintain the high position of his office. On this score I have no defence to offer. With heads bowed in shame, I admit you surely can expect such a language from this little snake, as he is nothing but a white-washed Hawaiian; he cares not for this country and

"He is one of those animals that has a rope tied to his nostrils and is led one of those that will give up his birth-right for the sake of a few beans. If 1 am not mistaken, he has already done

"Now all this talk about the Delegate's incompetency is all 'bosh.' Delegate Wilcox has done a great deal for this country and people, and has done a great deal now. What has this little white-washed Hawaiian done for his country and people, can any one tell? He bolted away from the ones who showed him up to the world and

I presume he is so ashamed of the Delegate's incompetency because he fought for his country and his rights, and for justice, and also he fought to restore his Queen on the throne. Oh! what a shame!

"I could imagine seeing him hanging his head with shame on account of the Delegate's incompetency.

"Delegate Flynn has told several people here during his stay that Delegate Wilcox has been a faithful man to his country and people, and has done all he could at Congress, and even on his sick bed, and that he thinks that the Delegate has not been treated right by the people here."

The alarm was made general very soon after it started, and Chief Thurston and the Fire Commissioners were on the ground personally directing the work.

The trolley wires of the Rapid Transit company in Hotel street were early burned down, but no danger resulted to the firemen as the current had been turned off. Electric light and telephone wires littered the street, but promptly cut off without damage.

While the loss can only be estimated in the opinion of those at the fire the destruction of buildings will amount to $50,000, and the losses on stocks will add $20,000 to that sum.
